STOCKS.

The outside stocks were in brisk demand at the first session in the morning, the Bodies being the most sought for. Belvidere recovered some of its ground lost through the assessment, and Bulwer Con., Jupiter, Double Standard, Oro, Mono, McClinton, Champion, Bechtel and Blackhawk were firm, most of them at increased rates. Between sessions there was a little change, the Bodies continuing in demand, but not at advanced rates. In the second session the only special features were Bullion and Potosi, there being large sales of the former, closing at 4 85, but touching 5, and sales of the latter at 4 to 4.05. The other stocks maintained about the same rates as in the previous session.

North Noonday has won its suit against Orient.

Real Del Monte has levied a 50 cent assessment.

A BARKEEPER'S ECONOMY.—About 2 o'clock yesterday morning a colored gentleman connected with the Ormsby House came down stairs, and seeing a bright light raised the cry of "fire." It proved that he had mistaken the reflection of Gilhooley's cluster diamond pin for a conflagration. The young man now uses the jewel to take his medicine by in the night, and it saves lighting a lamp. Such economy is bound to make him rich.

SHAK THIEF.—There is a man who goes about town at night and cuts slices off the meat which hangs in front of restaurants and butcher shops. He has been frequently seen at his work late at night, and is notified that a repetition of the offense will result in his not "returning to his mutton" for some time.

DR. D. BANKS MCKENZIE.

HE ARRIVES AT CARSON AND BRACES UP HIS CONSTITUENTS—HIS PLAN FOR THE COMING CAMPAIGN.

Dr. D. Banks McKenzie, the famous temperance agitator, actually arrived yesterday afternoon and exhibited his corporal presence on the streets. As he passed along his tall form and well remembered face was recognized on all sides, and his friends rushed forward by the score to greet him.

BRACING THE WEARY KNEES.
It was quite affecting to see the members of the Reform Club cheer up at his coming. Men, whose gaunt visages and saddened faces showed too plainly that they were victims of temperance reform, grasped his hand as a drowning man would freeze to the end of a floating cask.

"Oh, Doctor, I'm glad you've come," said one who had struggled through a total abstinence of seven months. "It braces me up to see your face once more. I'd been gone in another week. Sometimes I've had carousing friends tempt me to take a nip when my throat was like a heated lime kiln, and still I've held out, but it was hard, awful hard."

"Hold the fort, old boy," said the doctor, slapping him on the shoulder, "I'm here."

"I'm all right, now; I can hold my grip six months more, I guess, and then I'll shake the demon off. I've got an under-hold on him now, and I guess when I get the leg-lock I can throw him down. Do come around right away and brace up—; he's about ready to let go, and I sometimes think he's taking a sly nip behind the door."

"Don't be uncharitable to your weaker brother; you may be mistaken."

"His breath gives him dead away, Doctor, dead away."

The above is but a sample of how the doctor went about and braced up the feeble knees all the afternoon.

HE BRACES HANK MONK.

When he met Hank Monk the latter was scared almost to death. The old stage driver had given the Doctor a solemn promise never to look upon the flowing bowl again.

"Are you all right Hank, have you held up?"

Hank trembled in every limb and stammered out:

"You bet, Doc-tor, I'm on de-ck. I haven't taken a darned drop since I see ye. It's been awful hard. I've refused four or five invitations to drinks every day. I'm awful glad you've come. I felt like fallin' down two or three times last week."

"Hank," said the Doctor, looking him straight in the face, "I can smell your breath right now."

"Oh, that's rock and rye used for coughs. (Here Hank coughed like a consumptive "Camille," as portrayed by Clara Morris.) All the doctors recommend it. Why, a child kin swallow gallons of it with impunity."

"Guess that's the rock you spit on, Hank."

"I've druv stage for years and I never run foul of a rock yet. To tell you the truth, Doc, I heard you was comin this mornin and, and I got so excited that I took a drink, the first since—"

"Hold on old boy, don't give me any of that."

Well Doc, you must have it. I've been drinking pretty steady ever since I saw ye last, but I know just where to let up and I haven't been full once. I didn't want to tell ye for fear of hurtin' yer feelings."

RALLYING THE SCATTERING FORCES

The Doctor's coming is hailed with acclamations of delight by the struggling soldiers of the temperance legion, who were so disheartened as to be on the eve of giving up the contest. His arrival at this hour is like the appearance of Paul Sheridan in the field at Winchester, where he turned the tide of battle in a moment and wrested victory from defeat. He has already filled the fighters with fresh elan, has massed the shattered columns in battle array and on Monday night will open with his artillery upon the advancing foe with the expectation of sweeping the cohorts of rum and gam from the vantage ground they had temporarily occupied.

PLAN OF THE CAMPAIGN.

The Doctor leaves this morning for Virginia City, where he will stay over Sunday and reorganize his line of defense. He will then return to this city and open his campaign in Carson by a meeting in the Opera House from the stage of which he will send his first shot circling into the battalions of gin which are entrenched along Carson street. The admission will be free, and he expects a rousing audience. He proposes to continue these meetings until he has wiped out the opposition and turned the capital into a stamping ground of temperance and reform. The progress of his work will be duly recorded in the APPEAL.

THE FORTHCOMING BALL.—There are now but twenty tickets remaining to be disposed of to the party which comes off at the Opera House on the 10th. The $200 seal skin sash is looked upon with hungry eyes by every woman in town. The ball promises to be a very pleasant affair all round.

MARRIED.—In Episcopalian Church, Feb. 27, 1889, at St. John's Episcopal Church by the Rector, Rev. Dr. Ackerley, Willie C. Ricord, of Paradise Valley, Nevada, to Alice L., daughter of Hon. T. N. Stone, of Elko, Nevada.

Lady Macbeth. Miss Annie H. Martin
Desdemona. Miss Annie H. Martin

Twenty-five cents admission for grown persons to all parts of the house, and children admitted for one dime. Doors open at 7 o'clock P. M.

A BILKING BUNIONIST.—Monsieur A. Albert, a peripatetic Parisian chiropodist, has come to grief in Eureka, where he has been shown up as a fraud and quack. He fled the city and was arrested in Carlin for neglecting to settle accounts. He will be tried for practicing medicine without a license, obtaining money under false pretences and endeavoring to leave the State without paying his bills.

He is the same bunion sharp who called at the APPEAL office not long ago, and wanted to contract for a year's advertising and job printing. He was informed that his first month's bills would have to be settled in advance. At this he drew himself up haughtily and remarked, "I am ze Paresian gentleman. Ven you say pay ze money in advance you reflect upon my honah. I will seek ze office of some respectable papah. I beede you good day. Bah!" He has advertised extensively in nearly all of the papers of the State and promised all of them that he would settle at the end of the month.

WEATHERWISE CAT-FISH.—The catfish in Clesovich's restaurant are regular barometers. They live in a large glass globe and just before the approach of a storm they lie low at the bottom of the globe, but if the weather is good they sport near the top of the water. It is also a noticeable fact that when the weather is bad, or about to be, they turn to a light green along their bellies and sides, but when fair weather is at hand their hue along the belly is a dull yellow. This circumstance only endorses the opinion held by the APPEAL that the cat-fish has more sense than any member of the finny tribe. Dan De Quille and Charley Leggate, the famous Comstock meteorologists, get all they know about the weather from the cat-fish, and palm it off on the public as original wisdom.

OUR SCHOOL TEACHERS ABROAD.—Yesterday a number of Carson school teachers visited Virginia to take a tour through the schools and ascertain if the Comstock method of teaching was all right. The party was headed by R. R. Sessions, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and consisted of Professor H. H. Howe, Miss Emelyn Walter, Miss Belle Ryan, Miss Jennie Kelly, Miss E. Babcock, Miss Alice Lathrop, Miss Annie Martin, Miss Minnie Blackburn, Miss Kate Bardenwerper, Mrs. D. R. Sessions, and Professor J. A. McMartin. All hands experienced a very enjoyable time, and express themselves delighted with the treatment of the educational magnates of Storey County.

POT HUNTERS' PARADISE.—Ducks are now found in large numbers on the Carson river, between McTarnahan's bridge and the Avriil ranch. They can be found in the morning in vast quantities, or after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. What attracts them to that particular spot is not known, but there seems to be a sort of political convention going on there. The place is a bonanza for the pot hunter and most of the fowls served at the restaurants come from that source.

DECLINED.—Three more communications on the philological peculiarities of the word Wilhelm were received at this office yesterday. As a rule newspapers like to pat the termination of the word fondly and continuously but the APPEAL opines that the people of this section have had quite a sufficient dose of the subject. The article published on Thursday night settled the matter. No more communications on the subject will be published from any source.

TEMPER IN A TEAPOT.—William Dailey, the young man who was arrested on the charge of assaulting the Porter children, was tried in the Police Court yesterday afternoon. The children told a long story of their grievances, which was considerably modified on cross-examination. The defendant testified that he found the children indulging in a row over a game of ball and separated them. The jury found a verdict of acquittal in five minutes.

VERY ILL.—Mrs. R. F. Brooks is lying very ill at the residence of Mr. Schneider, of the Boston Bakery.

YOUNG DAILEY RISES TO EXPLAIN.

[ADVERTISEMENT.]

EDITOR APPEAL: The Tribune last night contained a garbled and exaggerated account of my trial in the Police Court on the charge of assaulting a child. It was clearly shown that I simply separated two children who were fighting, yet to read the Tribune one would imagine that I was a second Cowley. The jury were out five minutes and acquitted me by unanimous vote, which cannot be said of the jury who convicted the Tribune editor of a felony. The senior editor of the Tribune was sitting in the Court-room all through my trial taking notes and regardless of the testimony, wrote what he knew was a deliberate exaggeration, guided only by his crazy animosity toward me. I do not fear him or his filthy newspaper, as both my poverty and good character place me beyond the reach of his kind.

WILLIE DAILEY.

A CLERK'S BAD BREAK.—"Are these full 'threees'?" asked a lady who was purchasing a pair of shoes in Carson yesterday.

"They will be when you get them on," was the reply of the clerk. The woman slammed down the shoes, left the store and it is safe to say she will never enter it again.

THE CARRIER'S ROUTE.—For the past few days the regular carrier of the APPEAL has been sick and the route has been served by a "sub." In consequence of this some irregularities have occurred. The carrier is now on his pegs again and things will run as usual.

C. C. Godwin, editor of the Enterprise, paid the APPEAL sanctum a visit yesterday. He came down to see his mother-in-law, and looked happy. A man who can keep on good terms with his mother-in-law has considerable style about him and it speaks pretty well for the mother-in-law, too.

A bric-a-brac club is about to form in this city. All lovers of old pottery and useless relics are requested to stand in.

W. L. Chalmers, special agent and adjuster of Hutchinson & Mann's Insurance Agency, was in the city yesterday.

Dan De Quille received the prize at Plummer's reading in Virginia City for being the homeliest man present.
